

One Way to the Beach

It was a sunny day, so I decided to spend the day on the beach alone to relax. Early in the morning, I started packing all my stuff for the trip and had breakfast before driving.

Once I arrived at the coast, I started looking for a nice place to settle and stay for the rest of the day. Due to the crowd, it was hard to find a good spot, however, the beach was beautiful, and a smooth breeze made the location ideal.

I placed my blue-coloured towel on the sand and my old umbrella next to it. After preparing everything, I put sun cream all over my body and laid down onto the towel, ready to get tanned.

Two hours passed by; I was sweating after such a long time under the sun. It was almost time for lunch, so I went to take a quick bath to get refreshed and started to eat.

Late in the afternoon, nobody was on the beach. I went to take a bath a little farther down the coast. A dolphin appeared and we started to play. Surprisingly, I could suddenly understand what it was communicating to me and said it wanted to show me something under the water. I agreed and followed it. After that, I never went back home again.

Míriam Navarro - Scott C1